ECLIPSES IN THE YEAR 1828.

THREE will be two Eclipses this year; both of the Sun, in the following order:

1st. The first will be on the 14th day of April, at 4 hours 39 minutes in the morning; consequently invisible to us. Moon's latitude, $8\frac{1}{2}'$ North; Sun's longitude, 0s. $24^{\circ} 23\frac{1}{4}'$. This Eclipse will be visible, central on the Meridian, and slightly annular, at 4 hours 45 minutes in the morning, in the Red Sea or Arabian Gulf, and at Suakem on its west coast, Jidda on its east coast, and at such other places on both coasts as lie in and near lat. $18^{\circ} 26' N.$

2d. The second will be on the 8th day of October, at 7 hours 39 minutes in the evening: of course invisible here. Moon's latitude, $6\frac{1}{2}'$ south; Sun's longitude, 6s. $15^{\circ} 40\frac{1}{4}'$. In the South Pacific Ocean, at and near the New-Hebrides and the Friendly Islands, or in and near latitude $13^{\circ} 7\frac{1}{2}'$ south, this eclipse will be visible, central on the Meridian, and brightly annular, at 7h. 44 $\frac{1}{4}$ m. evening.

S I G N A L S

Made at Partridge Island, and repeated at the Tower, in Carleton, on the approach of Vessels to this Harbour.

One Ball close, for one square rigged vessel,
One Ball half hoisted, for two ditto,
Two Balls close, for three ditto,
Two Balls separated, for four ditto,
A Pendant of any colour for five ditto,
A ditto under a Ball for six ditto,
A ditto over a Ball half hoisted for seven ditto,
A ditto under two Balls close, for eight ditto,
A ditto between two Balls separate for nine, ditto,
A flag of any colour, for ten or more ditto,

[The above are hoisted at the East or West yard arm, according to the quarter the vessels first appear in, with the addition of a Ball at the centre of the yard until the Rig of the vessel can be made out, when one or more of the following descriptive colours will be hoisted at the mast head:]

An Union Jack for a Flag Ship, with or without a squadron.
Ditto with a red pendant over, for a two decker.
Ditto with blue pendant over, for a Frigate.
Ditto with a white ditto ditto, for a small armed vessel.
A blue pendant for a Merchant Ship.
A red ditto for a Merchant Brig.
A white ditto for a topsail schooner or sloop.
A flag blue and white horizontally, a neutral fleet.
A pendant white and blue, a neutral man of war.
A blue flag, a neutral merchant ship.
A flag, red, white and blue, an enemy's fleet.
A pendant, red, white and blue, an enemy's man of war.
A red flag, an enemy's merchant vessel.
An Union Jack, over Neutral or Enemy's signals, the vessel is detained, or a prize.
A white flag over any signal, vessel bears a flag of truce.
A red flag pierced white, for the Digby Packet.
A ball at the mast-head, vessel is on shore or in distress:—
Should immediate aid be necessary guns to be fired.

In thick weather, a gun will be fired at Partridge Island, in answer to each gun heard at sea. — When a vessel requires a Pilot, her descriptive pendant will be shown at a yard arm, instead of a ball.

Time of going through the Falls.

THE Falls are level (or still water) at about three hours and a half on the Flood, and at about two hours and a half on the Ebb, which makes it passable four times in twenty-four hours, about ten or fifteen minutes each time. No other rule can be given, as much depends on the floods in the River Saint John, and the time of high water or full sea, which is often hastened by winds, and in proportion to the height of them.

To many a splendid scene, and deed of fame.
 For man forgets that death—fell enemy !
 Hath found an entrance to this citadel
 Of mortal life !—How many, now on earth,
 The busy and the fam'd—the man of wealth—
 The child of pleasure—ere the year shall close,
 Will lay their heads in dust !—Who are the victims
 Destined this year to fall before the foe ?
 What daring hand shall draw the impervious
 Which hides the future from man's seeking ?

No voice of heaven, or earth, reveals the names
Of thousands, entering now the shades of death ;
Blind to the gath'ring gloom :—enough to know,
Death will this year arrest the steps of man,
And crush his proud designs—his towering hopes.

INGRATITUDE.—No vice is more shameful than ingratitude. Nature itself abhors this disgraceful crime. The ungrateful are ever ready to receive the benefactions of others, but never reflect on their obligations to make return.

THE DREAMS OF LIFE.

All men are dreamers from the hour,
When reason first exerts its power;
Unmindful of its bitter sting,
To some deceiving hope we cling—
That hope's a dream!

The brazen trumpet's clangour gives,
The joy on which the warrior lives.
And at his injured country's call,
He leaves his home, his friends, his all,
For glory's dream!

The lover hangs on some bright eye,
And dreams of bliss in every sigh !
But brightest eyes are deep in guile,
And he who trusts their fickle smile,
 Trusts in a dream !

And there are those who build their joys,
On proud ambitions gilded toys,

Who fain would climb th' craggy height
Whose pow'r displays its splendid light,
 But dreaming fall !

Whilst others midst the giddy throng
Of pleasure's victims sweep along ;
Till feelings damp'd and satiate hearts,
Too worn to feel when bliss departs,—
 Prove all a dream !

THE FRUITFUL TREE.

Behold yonder tree which hangs over the river,
 Whose waters refresh both the branches and root,
 It bends as if gratitude hailed the great Giver ;
 Its leaves shall not fade, and in season there's fruit.

SEPTEMBER HATH XXX DAYS. 1828

No lightning shall blast it, no thunder shall shake,
No worm at the root shall destroy its fair pride;
Its leaves a cool shadow in summer shall make,
And its roots shall rejoice in the calm flowing tide.

Like this tree is the christian : his solid foundation
No tempest shall tear—no whirlwind shall shock;
'Mid the ebbing of joy, or the flow of vexation,
Unmov'd he abides, for he's fixed on a rock.

1828 OCTOBER HATH XXXI DAYS.

AUTUMN EVENING.

Behold the western evening light !
It melts in deep'ning gloom ;
So calmly christians sink away,
Descending to the tomb.

The winds breathe low—the withering
Scarce whispers from the tree ! [leaf
So gently flows the parting breath
When good men cease to be.

New Moon 8th, at 39 minutes after 7, evening.
First Quarter 16th, at 8 minutes after 2, morning.
Full Moon 22d, at 33 minutes after 8, evening.
Last Quarter, 30th, 55 minutes after 11, morning.

How beautiful on all the hills
The crimson light is shed !
'Tis like the peace the christian gives
To mourners round his bed.
How mildly on the wand'ring cloud
The sun-set beam is cast !
'Tis like the memory left behind,
When lov'd ones breathe their last.

And now above the dews of night
The yellow star appears !
So faith springs in the hearts of those Whose eyes are bathed in tears.
But soon the morning's happier light
Its glories shall restore ;
And eyelids that are seal'd in death
Shall wake to close no more.

1828 DECEMBER HATH XXXI DAYS.

Reader, another year has gone to mingle with a past eternity, but it has left a record of your conduct to the court of heaven. There it will meet you, when the last trump shall summon you to judgment. Will it testify to your shame or to your joy? You are one year nearer death; but are you one year nearer heaven? Have you done as you would be done by, avoided known sins, improved all your time, and been charitable to the poor? Have you loved Christ more than the world, and your neighbour as yourself?

New Moon 6th, at 35 minutes after 11, evening.

First Quarter 13th, at 0 minutes after 5, evening.

Full Moon 21st, at 49 minutes after 1, morning.

Last Quarter 29th, at 2 minutes after 6, morning.

FRENCH CALENDAR,

An English wit, disgusted with the mamby-pamby style of the French Calendar, has given the following ludicrous translation of their months:

Autumn—WHEEZY, SNEEZY, FREEZY.

Winter—SLIPPY, DRIPPY, NIPPY.

Spring—SHOWERY, FLOWERY, BOWERY.

Summer—HOPPY, CROPPY, POPPY.

MANGEL WURTZEL.

*Abbreviated translation of the Abbe Rosier's remarks on the " Racine disette," [root of scarcity] or Bete rave champetre [field beet.]
It is the Beta albissima of Linnæus.*

THE field beet, somewhat harder and less sweet than the common garden beet, grows like that chiefly above ground, into which it does not penetrate more than half its whole length. It would be apt to rot if you should cover it with soil.

It has one valuable property, and that is, that you may strip it repeatedly of its leaves, and thus furnish a most abundant forage for cattle, and it will rather thrive upon it, while the common beet is much injured by such treatment.

Its culture is easy—its advantages numerous. It will supply the place of all other food for cattle. It succeeds in all soils, and especially in those which are humid or light.

This root is very little affected by changes of weather. It is attacked by no insect—drought affects but little its vegetation. It prepares the ground extremely well for other crops. It is known in Germany by the name of mangel wurtzel. Rosier recommends that the root of scarcity should be sown in beds, and then transplanted, but this expense is not necessary. It may be sown and treated precisely like the common beet, except that they ought to stand eighteen inches asunder, those that are left to grow.

The more the land is manured and cultivated, the better the plants. In ordinary land, with common culture, they will weigh 5 or 6 pounds a piece, and the leaves can only be stripped four or five times in a season. In good land they often weigh nine or ten pounds, and are stripped eight or nine times. In a light, sandy, but well manured soil, they sometimes weigh fourteen and even sixteen pounds each!

The first crop of leaves in France is taken off in the latter end of June, or the beginning of July. In this country, probably the latter time would be preferable. The lower leaves, those which incline towards the ground, are those which are taken away, and care must be taken to preserve the top leaves or the crown of the plant. The leaves may be taken off every fifteen days after the first gathering.—Oxen, cows, and sheep devour them greedily, and fatten readily upon them. All domestic poultry eat them readily when chopped fine and mixed with grain. Horses will feed upon them very well, mixed with chopped straw.—Hogs also fatten upon them.

REMARKS.

Cows fed upon them solely, give a greater quantity of milk and cream, and of better quality for the first fifteen days, after which they grow too fat and the milk lessens. The food of cows must, therefore be varied. Oxen and sheep fatten very well upon them. Cows should have grass in the proportion of one third to the beet leaves, or every third day they should be turned to grass. In this mode their milk will be excellent. The trouble of gathering the leaves will be less than that of any other green fodder. It may be done by children, while men are required to cut other green food for cattle. It is the surest crop, since the plant will stand the largest droughts. He adds, that the leaves make an excellent vegetable for the food of man, but as in our country we have such an abundance of green vegetables, this may be deemed of small consideration.

The roots are gathered and treated like those of the common beet. The skin is very tender, and care should be taken to handle them so as they may not be wounded, as they will, in that case, not keep so well.

In order to preserve the seed in purity, care must be taken to change the ground in which the seed beets are planted.

The seed can be preserved after it is gathered three or four years without injury.

In giving these roots to cattle for food, they are first washed and then cut up into pieces about the size of a nut.

It is always best to accompany them when given to horned cattle with clover, or other hay or straw, and if the hay or straw has been previously cut fine, it will be preferable.

If horses are fed with this root, with a proportion of hay or cut straw, (half of each,) they will be fat, vigorous, and healthy. If they are worked severely, a little oats or corn may be added. It is thus they are treated in Germany, where this root stands in the stead of meadows or grass lands, and whose excellent horses are well known.

Hogs fed upon them raw, after they have been cut, up fine and mixed with milk or other drink, fatten upon them as well as upon boiled potatoes, by which the fuel and trouble of boiling are saved.

As to the quantity given to animals, much will depend on the proportion of other fodder which you allow them. Cows fed twice a day upon eighteen pounds of these roots at each time together, with four pounds of hay or chopped straw, will give as much and as good milk as in summer, and they will be kept in the best possible state.

Oxen fed with forty weight of these roots per day, with ten pounds of hay for one month, and after that with fifty weight per day of the roots alone, will be fat enough for sale in two months more.

Any person disposed, may, from the facts above stated, calculate how many cattle will be supported by a single acre on which this plant is cultivated. Its benefits are indisputable.

The Abbe concludes with this summary:

1. Men can eat this vegetable throughout the year. It is agreeable and healthy.

2. No insect whatever attacks it. It suffers little from the variety of seasons.

3. The leaves of this plant form alone an excellent food for every species of domestic quadruped during four months in the year.—Turnips and other vegetables are besides liable to be destroyed by insects, whereas this beet is not.

4. The roots can be preserved eight months in a sound state, while turnips are of little value after March.

5. In some soils turnips will not grow, particularly in those that are very stiff or strong.—The root of scarcity grows every where.

6. The milk of cows fed on turnips has a bad taste. That of those fed on this plant is excellent, as is also the butter made from it.

This forage or green fodder comes also at the hot seasons, when almost all the green food is scarce and not to be procured.—Cattle never get tired of it. In many parts of Germany, where it is raised with success, they prefer it to every thing else to fatten those large breeds of cattle which they export annually to France.

To the Editor of the New-England Farmer.

SIR—I was gratified on perceiving in your paper an extract on the subject of mangel wurtzel, or the root of scarcity. From my own experience I am satisfied of the correctness of the Abbe Rosier's statement respecting its easy cultivation and superior value. The product I have found not only greater, but of better quality for the purposes for which I have used it, than that of any other vegetable which I have ever cultivated. It should be the object of farmers to furnish winter food for their milch cows, both succulent and nourishing. In these respects the mangel wurtzel and sugar, beet excel. I mention both, as I give the preference to the latter, as of richer quality, and as it retains its virtues to a later period in the spring, when food of this kind is the most important. It is less productive, but the difference is fully compensated.

The last season I appropriated nearly half an acre of my nursery ground to these vegetables. The rows of trees are five feet asunder. One half of the spaces between them was planted in a single row with the mangel wurtzel, and the other with the sugar beet. The leaves afforded an abundance of most valuable food for my cows and swine, and seemed not to be lessened by the drought. I culled only the full grown and pendant leaves, which afforded four bushels per day through the season. As my cows had been some time in milk, a part of the nutriment in winter was necessarily converted into flesh. They were allowed three pecks each at two feedings, night and mornings. Most of my swine were kept entirely on this root, previously boiled, mashed and salted. Two breeding sows were restored to high flesh entirely on this food. On this spot of ground I raised 325 bushels of roots so well packed as to weigh 65 pounds each—amounting to 21125 pounds. No other vegetable would have produced half this amount with the same expense and labour. If the land had been wholly cultivated with these roots, the produce would probably have been doubled.

Respectfully yours,

O. FISKE.

SUGAR FROM BEETS.

The bulletin of the society in France for encouraging national industry, for July last, contains the following interesting intelligence:—The perseverance of M. Chaptal, the president, in his efforts to encourage the manufacture of sugar from beets, has completely succeeded—and it is expected that France will soon be able to produce sufficient of this article for her own consumption. It is asserted, in the most positive manner, that sugar from beets and sugar from canes are precisely the same substances. It is acknowledged that the cultivation of beets is very beneficial to land in preparing it for a wheat crop, and after the saccharine matter is extracted, the root is excellent food for cattle. Besides the produce of sugar, the manufacturer obtains also molasses, which gives a considerable quantity of brandy—and in the manufacture great numbers of workmen find employment in the dull months of the year. A Mr. Cresvel owns a factory at Arras, where he made in 1822, about 280,000 pounds of sugar from this vegetable, by an excellent process, which he communicates freely to all who wish to be informed on the subject. He obtains from ten parts of beets, five parts of sugar, and four of molasses. One hectare (two and a half acres,) planted with beet, gave him 3000 pounds of sugar, or 1200 lbs. per acre. M. de Beaujen, of Bellor, Orne, has simplified the fabrication of this sugar in such a manner, that it may be made in common families.

KITCHEN GARDEN.

By Richard Treat, the oldest Gardener at the Shaker Village, in New-Lebanon, N. Y.

Lettuce.—It should be sown as early as it can be raked into the ground, for it cannot be injured by early frosts. Dr. Hammond sows a bed for early lettuce, late in the preceding fall. It ought to be sowed in rows sixteen inches apart, between vacant rows intended for some other plant. For as the lettuce will soon be pulled out, other rows of vegetables may occupy the whole bed.

Radishes should be sown in drills, eight inches apart. The beds should be made with horse manure fresh from the stables, well mulched with good garden mould. Often loosen the soil about them while growing and keep out the weeds.

Onions.—They should be sowed in drills sixteen inches apart made very shallow, not exceeding half an inch in depth, and raked in lightly lengthwise of the drills. The beds having been well worked with thorough rotted manure at least five inches deep; they will be up very uniformly in about fourteen days.

Hoe them as soon as they are up sufficiently to be hoed carefully without injury. Let them be hoed six or seven times during the season. The tops will fall about the 10th of August, but they will continue to grow until the first week in September. They must not be pulled until the tops become dry; being biennial, onions never produce seed until the second year.

Onions should be sown on the same beds; for experience has demonstrated that the crops become better, after being raised on the same beds many years in succession.

Beets and Carrots.—They should be sown in drills three-fourths of an inch deep, and twenty inches apart—if carrots are in drills but sixteen inches apart and half an inch deep, it is about as well. The ground prepared and the seed raked in as for onions.

Garden Beans should be planted about the middle of May, half an inch deep, in rows. The rows for bush beans should be three feet apart, with the hills in a row two and a half feet from each other. The rows for pole beans should be four feet apart, and the hills in a row three feet from each other.

They should be hoed three times before the flowering time; but must never be hoed when wet with dew or rain.

Melons, Cucumbers, and Squashes.—They should be planted about the middle of May; cucumbers for pickling may be planted about the middle of the following month.—The hills may be three or four feet apart. The ground should be as well prepared as for onions, and they must be hoed three times before the time for vines to run. Afterwards pull out the weeds.

GREEN VEGETABLES FOR MANURE.

[Recommended by the Editor of the N. E. Farmer.]

No good farmer or gardener will permit (when he can well avoid it) weeds, nor indeed any other vegetable or animal matter to dry or rot above ground. In hoeing corn, it is better to bury the weeds as you proceed, than to leave them on the top of the ground. In gardening, when you have collected a mass of weeds, throw over them a sufficient quantity of soil to keep them from the air, and to absorb the products of their decomposition. Make small heaps of weeds in balks or alleys, and in a short time they will give you beds of compost manure.—Green ferns (brakes) are recommended by Mr. Knight and others as very useful for this purpose, as they contain more fertilizing substance, or food for plants, than most vegetables. Mr. Knight says, "any given quantity of vegetable matter can, generally, be employed in its recent and organized state with much more advantage than when it has been decomposed, and no inconsiderable portion of its component parts has been dissipated and lost during the progress of the putrefactive fermentation."—But the best use which can be made of brakes, generally speaking, is to give them to swine.

PLOUGHING IN GREEN CROPS.

[Extract of a letter from Zebias Stebbins, Esquire of Springfield, to S. W. Pomeroy, Esquire, of Brighton.]

"I have been in the habit, for three years past, of ploughing my land deep, about the 20th of June, and sowing half a bushel of buckwheat to the acre; and about the 20th of August turned the crop completely in;

thereby. The last season we took from a poor, birchen soil, about 23 bushels of good white Virginia wheat per acre, with no other manure than the ploughing in of buckwheat as above."

CABBAGES.

They should be transplanted into the beds where they are to grow about the 26th of May, they having been sowed in a small bed for plants about a month previous.
The ground ought to be well mellowed and manured, before they are transplanted.

They should be hoed in the morning, when the dew is on, once each week, until they begin to head.

They must not be pulled up until there is danger of their freezing too fast in the ground to be got up. If there happens an early snow, it will not injure them.
When they are removed from the garden, they should be set out again, in a trench dug in the bottom of a cellar. If the cellar is pretty cool, it will be the better.

SMUT WHEAT.

To prevent wheat from smutting, wash the seed well, and add four quarts of slack lime to each bushel—stir it well, and let it stand in this situation three days. The gentleman who communicated the above, says he has never failed of complete success.

BOILING MILK.

Perhaps it is not so generally known as it ought to be that the boiling of milk before it is set away for the cream to rise, will completely divest it, and of course the butter made therefrom, of the very unpleasant flavour arising from the cows having fed upon garlicky pastures
—the boiling ought to be continued for at least half an hour—this dairy secret if it be one, I have learnt from a female friend, who has been in the habit of availing herself of it for some years past.

Useful Receipts, &c.

Preserving Grain.—A discovery of considerable importance has been announced, with regard to preserving grain. To preserve rye, and secure it from insects and rats, nothing more is necessary than not to fan it after it is threshed, and to stow it in the granaries mixed with the chaff. In this state, it has been kept more than three years, without experiencing the smallest alteration, and even without the necessity of being turned to preserve it from humidity and fermentation. The experiment has not yet been made with wheat and other kinds of grain, and they may probably be preserved in chaff with equal advantage.—New-England Farmer.

Potatoes food for Horses.—To every three hundred pounds of potatoes, washed and steamed, is added half a pint of salt, and occasionally a small portion of sulphur: this quantity will more than supply a horse kept constantly at work for six days. Horses thus fed, will perform with the greatest ease, all the common labor of a farm, without hay or oats.—ib.

To keep Winter Apples.—Take ground plaster of Paris, put a laying of ground plaster into a barrel, then place the apples in a laying into the barrel so that they do not touch, then a laying of plaster, then a laying of apples, until the barrel is full. By this method, the apples are preserved from dampness and air, and may be kept a year.

For inflamed sore eyes.—White vitriol, one drachm, acid elixir of vitriol, twenty drops, and boiling water, one pint: put the white vitriol into water, and when nearly cold, add the drops, and afterwards add one large table spoonful of brandy or very old rum. If the above should be found too strong, weaken each quantity drawn off with more or less rose water.

To take ink spots out of cloth or linen.—Wet immediately the place with lemon or sorrel juice, or with white soap diluted with vinegar.

HENS will, it is said, be sure to furnish an extra quantity of eggs, if you deal to each a gill of oats per day.

n an extra quan-
oats per day.

To make Tomato Ketchup.—For half a gallon, take a gallon of skinned tomatoes, 4 table spoonfuls of salt, 4 of black pepper, half a spoonful of allspice, 8 pods of red pepper, 3 table spoonfuls of mustard; grind them finely and simmer them slowly in sharp vinegar, in a pewter basin, three or four hours, strain it through a wire sieve, and bottle it closely. Those who like the article, may add, after the ingredients are somewhat cool, two table spoonfuls of the juice of garlic.

To make durable Candles.—To ten ounces of mutton tallow, add a quarter of an ounce of camphor, 4 ounces of beeswax and two ounces of alum; melt them all together, and make your candles.

Cure for oxen strained by over-drawing.—About half a pint of common soap, stirred up with a quart of milk, poured down the throat of the animal, will, we are told, speedily effect a cure.

Covering for Roofs.—A new substitute for slates has been adopted in England, and introduced extensively into use. A quantity of lime is slackened in tar, in which sheets of the largest and thickest brown paper are dipped, and then laid on in the manner of slating. This is said to make a durable covering, answering every purpose of shingles or slates, and will effectually resist the weather for a great number of years.

For the Whooping Cough.—The following has been recommended:—Dissolve a scruple of the salt of tartar in a gill of water, add ten grains of cochineal finely powdered, and sweeten with brown sugar. Give to an infant the fourth part of a table spoonful four times a day, and from four upwards a spoonful may be taken.

To preserve Potatoes from the Frost.—If you have not a convenient store place for them, dig a trench three or four feet deep, into which they are to be laid as they are taken up, and then covered with the earth taken out of the trench, raised up in the middle like the roof of a house, and covered with straw to carry off the rain.—They will thus be preserved from the frost, and can be taken up as they are wanted.
